Corner Stone Laying.

The corner stone of the new Presbyterian church was laid yesterday afternoon in the presence of 300 or 400 people. Rev. McIntosh, pastor temporarily in charge, conducted the services, and the program as published Tuesday was carried out in full. In his statement Rev. McIntosh gave a historical summary of the church, which was organized Jan. 15th, 1873, with a membership of ten, which has since grown to about 225. During the thirty-five years there have been ten ministers, the late pastor, Rev. T. B. Greenlee, having occupied the pulpit of the church longer than any other. The present church building was erected in 1878.

In the corner stone was deposited a roll of the membership of the church and Sunday school, the officers of the aid, missionary and Christian Endeavor societies, copies of the church and local papers, the subscribers to the building fund, the names of the building committee and the name of the contractor.

This new edifice will cost twenty thousand dollars exclusive of the organ, and will be one of the most attractive church buildings in the west part of the state.

Taft Triumphant.

William Howard Taft was elected president of the United States Tuesday, receiving to a certainty 298 electoral votes, with a possibility of receiving the eighteen votes of Missouri, in which event he would receive 316 to 164 for Bryan.

In a majority of the states the majorities received by the Taft electors almost equal those received by Roosevelt four years ago. In New York, which the democrats were so sure would go for Bryan, the republican victory is overwhelming, even greater New York giving Taft a majority. Hughes was re-elected governor in that state.

In Nebraska the democrats made a clean sweep, giving Bryan a lead of about 7,000, electing the full state ticket and a majority of the legislature.

The democrats elect four of the six congressmen, Henshaw in the Fourth and Kinkaid in the Sixth, both republicans, pulling through by greatly reduced majorities.

It has a strong moral which always leaves a good impression, and bears the proud distinction of having the endorsement of all the leading critics of things theatrical, as well as of the pulpit and the press throughout the entire country. The comedy is clean, refined and exceedingly funny, being the kind of fun you are not ashamed to have your wife, sister, mother or sweetheart see.

Mr. Raymond has equipped the play with the best of accessories, and has spared no expense in making its production one thoroughly worthy of the patronage accorded it.

HIS CONFIDENCE CAME LATE.

(Original.)

Rear Admiral Ralph Donahue, U. S. N., retired, sixty-three years old, martinet, bachelor, woman hater and various other titles, sat at his breakfast in the Army and Navy club. He was thinking of a large sum of money he had won the night before of young Lester Sheldon and that he would use it to run across the "big pond" and see Paris in June. As he was rinsing his fingers in a cut glass bowl, preparatory to leaving the table, a waiter stepped up to him and announced that a lady wished to see him in the reception room.

"A lady! To see me! In the reception room! Great Scott! Isn't a man safe even in his club?"

"It isn't usual, sir, but it's an hour when few members are present, and she begged so hard that the steward told the doorkeeper to admit her."

The admiral had just enough curiosity to go to the reception room and learn the reason for the call. He found a very pretty young woman in widow's cap, whose eyes were dimmed with tears.

"Oh, admiral," she gasped, "tell me, have you parted with the notes?"

"What notes?"

"That you won from my brother last night."

"Your brother?"

"Yes, Lester—my brother—Lester Sheldon."

"What's that to you, madam?"

"Oh, admiral, I've heard of your honorable nature and kind heart."

"Bosh! Speak out."

"My brother is in great distress. I have just prevented him taking his life. He is cashier at his place of business. Lately he has been gambling. The notes you won he took from his cash at the office. After leaving you he had one note left and this morning noticed that it was marked."

"For heaven's sake, this is a pretty mess for me to be mixed up in!"

"Oh, it's all right if you still have the notes."

"I have them."

"How fortunate!" And a relieved smile came over the sad face like a flood of sunlight from behind a cloud.

"I will take them and give you my check for them."

"But, my dear lady, I didn't win the money from you. I can't take your check. But I will give you the notes."

"Now, don't spoil everything. I can only handle Lester by assuring him that the notes have been taken up and he know of the transaction. It's nothing to me, I assure you. I have an income of $20,000 a year. I've helped Lester out of many a scrape. I only hope I'll live to keep something dreadful from happening to him."

Meanwhile she had gone to a table covered with writing materials, filled a blank check she took from her card-case and at the last words handed it to the admiral.

"But, my dear madam, consider my position. I, an admiral in the United States navy, to take money from a woman! Suppose it should get out!"

"My dear admiral, how is it to get out? Will Lester tell? Will I tell? Only you remain."

"And you think it best for me to"—
"Of course. Now, do let me have the bills. Lester is suspected and may have to turn over his accounts as soon as he appears at the office. He is waiting for me. Do let me go!"

This was too much for the admiral. He took the notes from his pocketbook and handed them to the lady. She dropped the check into the same receptacle, rubbing her soft hand against his as she did so and looking up with an exuberance of gratitude out of her soft eyes. Then she ran away hurriedly.

"Well, now," remarked the admiral to himself, "if I could find a woman like that I wouldn't be a woman hater. To think what she's doing for that scapegrace brother! Most women absorb money, instead of spending it in that way."

He was in no hurry to deposit the check. Indeed, he was thinking of a bit of self sacrifice he might make that possibly would effect a romance in his old age—a romance that would free him from depending on a club for a home. He fancied himself tearing up the check or burning it, as the leading gentleman in a play would do, and a certain lady falling into his own arms.

The same evening he was sitting in his club looking over a paper when who should saunter in but Lester Sheldon.

"Hello, admiral," he said cheerily. "I'm going for you tonight. I'll take all you won from me last night and more too."

The admiral looked at him, astonished.

"What's the matter?" asked Sheldon, not understanding the surprise. "Don't you want to give me my revenge?"

"What's the matter? Didn't your sister this morning take up the notes I won from you with her check?"

"My sister?"

"Yes, your sister."

"I haven't any sister."

The admiral glared for a moment, then made a dive for his pocketbook, took out the check, unfolded it and handed it to Sheldon.

"Admiral," said the latter, "you've been bunked."

"Bunked! I bunked by a woman! I never trusted a woman in my life—that is, before."

"You mean you never trusted a good one. Your only case of confidence was in a bad one."

Sheldon had talked in his cups of his loss in a promiscuous crowd.

SULLIVAN KING.

Cares Redoubled.

"My time," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "is very valuable."

"That's what makes me doubt the benefit of vast wealth," replied the easy going acquaintance. "It's bad enough to be bothered by the wasting of a few dollars without being worried sick every time you lose five minutes."
